Kidnaping Of Russian Attempted

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Four men believed to be right-wing terrorists tried to kidnap a Soviet diplomat Sunday night in apparent retaliation for the recent abduction of a Paraguayan diplomat by left-wing terrorists. The diplomat fought free and a police corporal shot and wounded the four abductors.

The Soviet Embassy in the first official word on the kidnap attempt said today that Jury Pivovarov, deputy director of the commercial section of the embassy was clubbed with a pistol butt during the attempted kidnap but was not seriously hurt.

The four kidnapers were in two Buenos Aires hospitals, where sources said all suffered from pistol wounds and that two of them were in grave condition. One underwent an operation early today for removal of a bullet that entered his skull through the left eye.

Police secrecy was so great in the kidnap attempt that at one point a top aide of President Juan Carlos Onganía called the UPI office for details.

Court Upholds Right To Trial

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court let stand today a lower court decision that a prisoner has the right to demand a jury trial before he can be committed to a mental hospital.

At issue was a split decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia which held that prisoners have the same right granted all other persons by law to judicial hearings before they are involuntarily committed to mental hospitals.

Events On Easter Sunday Indicate Current Times Are "Out Of Joint"

In Boston, Cardinal Richard Cushing noted that if it were an earlier day, our times would be viewed as "out of joint." Even somebody who never read "Hamlet" might get the idea on Easter Sunday, 1970.

While some traditional Easter services around the world went off as scheduled, others were not spared demonstrations against the war on the day marking the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem is built over the tomb where Jesus lay after His death upon the cross on Calvary nearly 2,000 years ago. Sunday, Christian pilgrims celebrated Easter mass at the church.

At Alto Pass, Ill., the 111-foot porcelain "Cross of Peace" stands atop Bald Knob Mountain. About 1,200 persons from six states gathered beneath the cross on the 1,034-foot hill and, like the pilgrims of Jerusalem, celebrated the living Christ.

While those at the "Cross of Peace" braved an inch of snow, New York City's famous parade down Fifth Avenue never got on the road because of snow, hail, rain, sleet and cold. Church attendance was cut by the wintry weather and Father James Rigney told those in St. Patrick Cathedral, "It looks more like Christmas outside."

New York fashion plates were not the only ones going nuptial. A strike by the nation's air traffic controllers canceled

Easter Storm Has Moved Out To Sea

By United Press International The storm that brought a snowy, windy Easter to many parts of the Atlantic Coast and as far inland as Western Pennsylvania moved farther out to sea today.

The storm spilled six to 12 inches of snow from Central Pennsylvania to Southern New England.

The snowiest Easter on record at Albany, N.Y.—five inches of the fluffy white stuff—occurred at the Empire State's capital.

The 7.8 inches measured at Providence, R.I., marked the heaviest snowfall there during the past winter and early spring.

The snow in New York City marked the first on Easter Sunday of any quantity since 1915 with up to three inches in the city itself and as much as eight inches in the suburbs.

The snow also canceled airline flights, including all shuttle flights between New York airports and Boston and Washington.

Pittsburgh received its heaviest Easter snowfall in 70 years with 4.2 inches at the airport and 4.4 downtown. Six to eight inches of snow was reported in the suburbs.

Egypt Attacked

By United Press International Israeli warplanes returned to the attack against Egypt today after a two-day lull, hitting what Tel Aviv described only as military targets along the southern and central Suez Canal. Reports in London told of 12,000 new Soviet advisers setting up a new Egyptian air defense system.

The announcement of the new air strikes said the raiders stayed over their targets for about 45 minutes and all returned home safely.

Many flights, snarling Easter holiday travel for thousands. Cardinal Cushing of Boston issued a special Eastern message calling for the freedom of young people who have been jailed for protesting the war and resisting the draft.

Indeed, the Vietnam War was a factor in many Easter services, with clergymen and congregations praying for its termination or with antiwar demonstrators disrupting services.

Well-dressed youths entered Grace Cathedral and St. Ignatius Roman Catholic Church in San Francisco and tried to read an anti-Vietnam War letter from "33 Vietnamese Catholics living in Europe."

Nixon also wanted to stay on top of the situation in Southeast Asia where Cambodia is going through a political and military upheaval.

Nixon planned to depart at 2 p.m. EST to be back at the White House for a late afternoon progress report from Postmaster General Winton M. Blount.

Nixon was worried a large postal pay boost would dash his slim budget surplus and open the way for similar demands by other federal workers.

Sunday reported it took more than five hours to drive from Hartford, Conn., to Boston, which is normally about a two-hour trip.

Numerous accidents were reported in Southern New England as holiday travelers tried to get home.

Tunney's Daughter Is Accused

AMERSHAM, England (UPI)—The daughter of former world heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney has been charged with murdering her husband, who was found dead of head injuries Sunday in their century-old red brick cottage.

Joan Tunney Wilkinson, 30, was arrested and ordered to appear Tuesday morning in Chesham Magistrate's Court. Her husband, Lynn Carter Wilkinson, 31, was described by neighbors as having the appearance of a hippie.

Neighbors said his mother, Ruth B. Wilkinson of Milwaukee, was seen leaving the cottage in suburban Chesham near Amersham, 28 miles northwest of London, early Sunday and that the two Wilkinson children were with her.

They said she called from a telephone booth and within minutes, police arrived. The elder Mrs. Wilkinson had recently arrived on vacation.

President's Vacation Cut Short

KEY BISCAINE, Fla. (UPI)—President Nixon cut short his Easter vacation today to fly back to Washington to deal with the critical postal workers pay negotiations.

Nixon planned to depart at 2 p.m. EST to be back at the White House for a late afternoon progress report from Postmaster General Winton M. Blount.

Nixon was worried a large postal pay boost would dash his slim budget surplus and open the way for similar demands by other federal workers.

A White House source indicated the President would like to be tough on the ringleaders of the wildcat walkout. He still must deal with the question of amnesty for the strikers.

Nixon also wanted to stay on top of the situation in Southeast Asia where Cambodia is going through a political and military upheaval.

3 New Quakes Hit Turkey, Toll Soars

GEDIZ, Turkey (UPI)—Three more powerful earthquakes followed by rippling tremors hit western Turkey today, and streams of boiling water burst their banks in the center of a disaster area laid low by a quake on Saturday.

The body count was put officially at 637 today but an official in Emmet Sub-Province, a center of the new tremors, said, "We are afraid the death toll may rise to 2,000." Previously officials had predicted 1,000 bodies would be found.

The ground rose and fell today from the small tremors and an official said, "It's impossible to walk a straight line here." Underground lava heated the flooding streams to the boiling point.

The tremors in the city of Bursa today touched off panic and caused an explosion in an automobile plant under construction, according to reports from the scene. About 100 houses and buildings were reported damaged there.

In Istanbul, U.S. military aircraft were placed on alert to provide emergency relief to the stricken areas threatened by Bubonic plague—the "black death" of the Middle Ages.

The U.S. Embassy in Ankara ordered the U.S. airbase in Izmir to fly trucks, a portable hospital, a water tanker, medicine and blankets into the region.

Air Lane Snarl Goes On

By United Press International The job stay-away being waged by some of the nation's air traffic controllers continued to take its toll today in canceled flights and disrupted airline service, largely in the East. In some other sections of the country the slowdown was barely noticeable.

The airline industry said the job boycott, now in its sixth day, resulted in the cancellation of up to 700 flights Sunday, mostly in the Chicago-New York-Washington triangle. Snow, rain and low ceilings in the East also slowed operations.

The overall situation, however, appeared not much changed from when it started last week. The professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (ATCO) claimed more than 4,000 of its members were off the job, and the number was increasing. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) said the number was 1,405 and the boycott was stable.

The major weekend development was the FAA's order of a 50 per cent reduction in the quota of daily flights between Chicago's O'Hare International Airport and the three New York area fields. Even with the reductions there were delays up to three hours on some flights out of New York.

Riots Hit Ireland On Easter

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Thousands of Roman Catholics stormed a police station in Londonderry in one of a series of Easter outbreaks involving Northern Ireland's Catholics and Protestants.

More than 26 persons were arrested in the disturbances and troops were alerted to keep order at a planned Catholic civil rights demonstration today in Portadown, 40 miles south of Belfast.

The worst of the disorders was the attack on the police station at Londonderry. The Catholics threw iron bars and stones at British troops, several of whom were injured.

At one point, the Catholics turned on a Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Anthony Mulvey when he tried to restore order.

"For God's sake, go to your homes," the priest pleaded with demonstrators. He linked arms with the young people who joined him in efforts to restore calm. The demonstrators threw bottles and stones.

Some of the 16 demonstrations across Northern Ireland were in observance of Easter but most marked the 53rd anniversary of the Irish Republican Army seizure of the Dublin Post Office in the neighboring Irish Republic on Easter Sunday of 1916 in a drive for independence from Britain.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, the militant Protestant leader, held a Sunday rally in Belfast. Several scuffles broke out when Catholics wearing the emblem of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) taunted the marchers. One youth was knocked to the sidewalk by the bowler-hatted marchers.

Uprisings In Cambodia Fomented By Viet Cong

PHOM PENH (UPI)—Anti-government uprisings fomented by the Viet Cong have broken out in the seven Cambodian provinces bordering Vietnam, reports from the area said today. The government said the Viet Cong was sending thousands of guerrillas into Cambodia to stir up more trouble.

One guerrilla group was reported barely 37 miles from Phnom Penh and the Defense Ministry said a force of 60,000 Viet Cong and Vietnamese Cambodians in revolt have pushed from five to seven miles into the interior of the country and away from the Vietnamese border.

Although the major incursion has penetrated only a few miles, European planters in Phnom Penh said Dutch and French landowners along the Mekong River in Kampong Cham Province were leaving rubber and tobacco plantations as far as 50 miles from the Vietnam frontier.

Cambodian Premier Lon Nol said today that Cambodia had appealed to the United Nations for a U.N. observer team to come here and verify reports the Viet Cong are violating the Cambodian border. He told newsmen "there have been fights between our troops and Viet Cong and that's why we made the appeal."

He had appealed earlier to the International Control Commission and the U.N. for support.

Foreign diplomats in Phnom Penh were notified of the Viet Cong activities, Lon Nol said, and it was decided to protest the "aggressions and violations... of international law" at the U.N. He said "communists were 'conducting themselves as aggressors.'"

Ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk, now in Peking, was flooding Cambodia with broadcasts urging the populace to rise up against the Lon Nol government. Government sources said these appeals were being heeded in the seven border provinces.

Congress Eyes Desegregation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two major pieces of business—the Supreme Court nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell and a pay raise for postal workers—are sidetracked this week while Congress returns to a school desegregation issue on its holiday-shortened calendar.

NO CHILDREN, THAT'S not the big bad wolf's mouth wide open, but the engine of a freight train after it had collided with a semi-truck and trailer loaded with logs Saturday at Garibaldi, Ore. ## Canyon County Growers Back Spud Holding "Farmers today are fighting for their economic lives," Nafziger said. "Whether or not they survive depends entirely on their ability to unite and bargain successfully for a just price for their production."

Although there may be a few showers of snow or rain, skies should partially clear over the lower Malheur and Southern Idaho valleys today and a return to fair weather is expected on Tuesday.

Daytime temperatures will be about the same to a little higher than yesterday and high readings today and Tuesday will range from the upper 30s in parts of Southeastern Idaho to the upper 40s and 50s in East-Central Oregon and Southwestern Idaho, with clearing skies. ## Foul Clime Is Fare For Easter

If Easter time is supposed to mean spring, the weatherman was somewhat confused, as snow, rain, wind and fog occurred over various parts of Magic Valley Sunday and Monday.

U. S. Weather Bureau officials at Kimberly reported precipitation in valley areas was generally light with snow and rain totaling about .12 of an inch in moisture in Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert and other areas.

Easter was more like Christmas in most higher areas. Snow flurries continued throughout the day in Sun Valley, Ketchum and Hailey although in lower elevations it had melted by evening and Monday skies were clear.

Shoshone reported two inches of snow and Department of Highway officials said this was the most measured in the district and they had received no report from the Galena Summit area. On the Challis side of the summit no snow was reported.

In higher elevations around Magic Valley, snow was heavy. Forest officials reported Monday from Magic Mountain that about two feet of new snow has fallen in the storm that began Friday. It was still snowing there Monday morning.

The road to the area was plowed Thursday but was reported closed Monday morning. About one foot of snow fell Sunday afternoon and night.

Mizota was taking photographs for a Tokyo publishing company when he fell 10 feet off a platform.

Census Slated In Area

—Magic Valley is different, at least as far as the census is concerned.

The 1970 census starts Wednesday and throughout April census-takers will be visiting homes in the valley and asking questions, the answers to which, by law, will be kept confidential.

Mrs. Paul Carl and Mrs. Gene Sharp are the crew leaders for the Twin Falls area and Mrs. David Munroe is the crew leader at Buhl. They will have 43 people working with them in Twin Falls County during the month-long census.

While most people in the nation will not get personal visits by the census-taker, Magic Valley residents will. In some cases in the nation one household in 20 will receive a long form questionnaire, while other households will get the short form.

In Magic Valley short forms will be mailed to all households.

Officials cautioned residents not to mail the short forms back.

"A census taker will stop and pick it up, and at every fifth household a long form will also be filled out," officials said.

Census takers in Twin Falls County estimate it will take between 11 and 15 stops a day throughout the month to complete the personal survey. In Magic Valley, the estimate is between eight and 14 stops a day.

A nationwide census is required by law every 10 years. The first census was in 1790.

ANY STANDARD MOTOR can be adapted to the use of LP gas as fuel, according to officials of Vangas, Inc. Here a standard 1969 Plymouth Fury motor has undergone some changes for "clean-air" operation. Mileage cost is about the same and officials say there are at least 15 outlets in Twin Falls alone where a motorist can refuel with LP gas.

'Non-Smog' Car Is Demonstrated Here

An automobile that contributes no poisonous exhaust fumes to the atmosphere was cruising around Twin Falls last week, largely unnoticed by the public because it looks like most other 1969 medium-priced sedans.

The vehicle was different under the hood and in the rear trunk compartment because it has been converted to operate on propane gas rather than the conventional gasoline.

J. R. Carnahan, director of agriculture and marketing for Vangas Inc., Fresno, Calif., and Jack Kincaid, factory representative, Nevada City, Calif., brought the vehicle to Twin Falls Thursday as a demonstration unit for employees and officials of LP gas outlets in this area on how to equip and operate vehicles on this type of fuel.

From Twin Falls, the vehicle went to Boise where it was to be shown Gov. Don Samuelson in the hope of equipping the governor's car with the non-pollution equipment as a pace-setting move in Idaho.

Several state and municipalities have adopted the new fuel systems for public vehicles, Mr. Kincaid said.

The entire idea, Mr. Carnahan said, is to help in the current push to eliminate air pollution, a large percentage of which is caused by gasoline-burning vehicles. Especially in larger cities, it is estimated the switch to LP gas-burning vehicles would almost eliminate pollution and smog problems.

Twin Falls Girl Is Entrant In 'Miss ISU' Competition

One of the nine candidates for the 1970 title of Miss ISU at the Pocatello university is Mary Lynn Burkhardt, a sophomore majoring in history and government and a graduate of the Twin Falls High School.

Mary Lynn, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Burkhardt, northwest of the city, will complete April 4, in the ISU pageant for the honors to represent the school in the Miss Idaho pageant in Boise in June.

The Twin Falls coed has a theory about today's college and world unrest. "If you are against something, I think you should be able to offer a solution," she says.

A sports fan, she follows the Bengal basketball and football teams with interest, and hopes to make a career in teaching, hopefully with more gifted children.

"We spend millions on retarded youngsters," she says, "but there should be some special help and attention for those who are really gifted."

In the local high school she was active in the Pep Club, was a math honorary, an honor student and a delegate to Girls State. At ISU she serves on the standards board for Turner House, the dormitory where she lives.

Judge Says Family To Be Treated

WINCHESTER, Ind. (UPI)—A judge decreed Saturday that a family which has refused medical aid on religious grounds must submit to examinations because one of its children was stricken with diphtheria.

Although he said he has "no faith in doctors whatsoever," James Sorrell, a dairy farmer, said he would abide by the order issued by Randolph Circuit Judge Zane E. Stohler.

The judge named Dr. C.R. Slick to examine the Sorrells "immediately." He also decreed that the Sorrell home in rural Lynn be quarantined indefinitely "to protect others."

The Sorrells have five children with another expected. One of the children, Donna, 8, has diphtheria but the Sorrells have refused medical treatment.

Some sources said they were members of the Church of God sect.

"God has healed me and my children in the past," Sorrell told the court. He also said Donna was not seriously ill and had no fever. He added none of his other children was ill.

Sorrell also said while he would abide by the courts order, he would refuse medical aid at home and would refuse to let a member of his family be hospitalized.

120 Snakes 'Arrested' By Police

CARSON, Calif. (UPI)—A house near Malibu Lake was raided Friday and its more than 120 occupants were taken into custody for being a public nuisance.

The occupants were 75 snakes, mostly rattlers, 30 black widow spiders, a couple of king snakes, 12 mice and three kangaroo rats.

The owner of the menagerie was unknown. Neighbors told animal control officers the place had been vacant for three weeks and was a public nuisance.

The reptiles and insects were in cages or boxes, simplifying the roundup.

Rogerson Pair Hurt In Wreck

JACKPOT — Two Rogerson residents were listed in good condition Saturday in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after suffering injuries late Thursday in a one-car rollover about one mile north of the Idaho-Nevada state line.

Bonnie Helsley and Dorothy Lemke, both employed at Jackpot, were taken to the hospital by ambulance after their vehicle left the highway and rolled over.

"SHAMPOO" FATAL ACERRA, Italy (UPI)—Four-year-old Maddalena Perrella died of poisoning Friday when her mother used a powerful insecticide to wash her hair, police said. There have been many such deaths in the poorer and more backward parts of Italy in recent years despite radio and newspaper warnings against using pesticides on human beings.

Idaho Airports

The Post-Register
A Post-Register article last week on Teton Valley and the community of Driggs worrying about airport development in this beauty-blessed valley, puts focus on the continued inadequacy of Idaho's airport development program.

Teton Valley residents want to further develop the Friggs airport to provide more adequate fly-in facilities for the expected visitors to the new Grand Targhee recreation area.

Some East Idaho legislators apparently feel that a law passed this past session creating a new Aeronautics Commission and authorizing regional airports is either a full or partial solution. It is neither.

The Aeronautics Commission idea grew out of a dissatisfaction of some cities with Chet Moulton, long time Idaho aeronautics director. Presumably, the commission is to oversee Mr. Moulton's aeronautical ministrations.

But lack of development money is essentially Idaho's aeronautics problem, not Mr. Moulton. In fact, Mr. Moulton has registered an outstanding performance for the state these many years when one examines the amount of money which Mr. Moulton's department has to work with. Actually, Mr. Moulton has only between $50,000 and $60,000 money each year to spend on airport development. And he has parceled out this assistance over the hundreds of airports over the state, big and small, with earnest dedication but in pitifully small amounts.

This newspaper has disagreed with Mr. Moulton's continued emphasis on expanding the remote mountain airport network without sufficient weigh-in of both the need and the impact on environment in a given area. Some new airports are almost side by side.

Nevertheless, it was Mr. Moulton who pioneered the network of mountain airports, and practically all of these have been most serviceable in exposing not only Idahoans but hunters and fishermen from out of state to Idaho's great high country.

But the recent law establishing the Commission and the regional airport authority really provide no meaningful relief to Idaho's airport development challenge. The Commission is not endowed with any meaningful functions, first of all, and does not provide the opportunity to tap badly needed new sources of money.

The regional airport authority bill really only amends one part of the approval machinery for establishing a regional airport, but leaves both the unequal airport districts as well as the rest of the still-clumsy approval machinery as unacceptable as ever. It would seem to this newspaper that the state, with the new legislation, has an unnecessary watchdog for the Idaho Aeronautics Department and no workable plan for regional airports.

What is clearly needed is a plan whereby the state can, first of all, accumulate a fund to parcel out on either a grant-in-aid basis or a loan basis to qualifying airports. This would likely require a combination of an increase in the airplane fuel tax, a tax on rolling stock of the airlines, and an increase in the airplane registration fees.

Such a combination would generate the needed money. The small, destitute airports could probably qualify for initial grants-in-aid, up to a certain ceiling. The money could be loaned at low interest rates, in the main but not exclusively, to the larger airports. Idaho airports turn back federal funds regularly because cities or counties cannot provide matching monies. The state could assist the cities in this matching effort under standards which would not be difficult to work out in time.

As it is now, Idaho still does not have an airport development plan or the money to implement it.

Import Trouble

Christian Science Monitor

One of Washington's thorniest problems may be made even worse by the current slowdown in business activity. This problem is what to do about foreign imports which threaten American industry.

The breadth of this problem was shown a few days ago when tens of thousands of garment workers in various American cities demonstrated against the rising tide of garment imports. In doing so, they were only following in the footsteps of other workers who have recently demanded a cutback in imports of textiles, shoes, steel, and glassware.

Nor is there any doubt that in each of these industries, and in not a few others, both the level of earning and even the livelihood of many workers are threatened by such imports. Thus the pressure on Congress and the White House grows to take remedial action.

Unhappily, any such action instantly runs into two snags. The first is that to cut down on imports from X means that X will take fewer American exports, thereby threatening a different set of American workers. The second snag is international agreements to which America subscribes make it difficult to act. The best that can be done, and must be done, is to negotiate voluntary restrictions on imports, when the latter are crucially harmful.

Translation

Lewiston Tribune

Even unto now, it has been extremely difficult for a mere male to control effectively women during conversations of any sort. Perhaps the difficulty lies in language barriers.

So it is worthy of note when a control attempt succeeds. The other evening at Cape Town, South Africa, a board chairman, irked by the chatter of women outside a window, ordered:

"Send down someone who can speak fluent Zosha to tell those women to be quiet!" A dignified Zosha tribesman quieted the women by confronting them and saying, "SHHHhh."

Thus did one male halt womanly conversation, in his and their native language of Zosha. It is lamentable that his command, when translated into English, loses so much that it becomes utterly ineffective.

It's Wallace's Only Hope

ROBERTSDALE, ALA. — Before an all-white audience of 5,000 at a fish-fry in this south Alabama village climaxed his first full day of campaigning, George C. Wallace unveiled the strategy that holds his only hope for political survival.

The reason drives of newspaper columnists from up north were journeying to rural Alabama, said Wallace, was their awareness that the life or death of his "effort" are at stake. "I want this effort to continue," he said. "The eyes of the country are on you. You have the power in your hands." Wallace's appeal for election as governor of Alabama in terms of national politics was fully expected by the forces of his opponent and erstwhile protegee, Gov. Albert Brewer.

What has surprised them is the timing. They thought Wallace would experiment with state issues for weeks before settling down to the one strategy capable of closing the gap between him and Brewer by the May 5 Democratic Primary.

Indeed, Wallace's national strategy is the cloud menacing the Brewer camp's euphoria, which stems from amazingly favorable polls plus defections of old Wallace courthouse politicians. The disquieting note is that even Alabama's who no longer want Wallace as governor still would support him for president. Thus, Wallace must prove that the only way they can vote for him for president is to make him governor again.

This means Wallace has come full circle in two months. When he revealed early this year he might run against Brewer to save his third-party "movement," polls showed public indifference. Brewer then proclaimed that he, unlike Wallace, had been a "fulltime" governor. To the glee of the Brewer camp, Wallace retorted lamely he had been a "double time" governor. That farmed a debate over who was the most competent governor, an area where Wallace's emotional appeal would count for little.

Now, Wallace is back to a national strategy. "You and me," he tells audiences with dubious logic, "are responsible for Hubert Humphrey not being president of the United States, and that's something." Because of Wallace, President Nixon's speeches "look like they were written here in Robertsdale."

Thus, were he defeated for governor now, the South would lose its vigilant watchdog on the Nixon Administration. In coming weeks, Wallace will be increasingly explicit that his repudiation here would convince Mr. Nixon that the South was in his pocket for 1972 and, therefore, he could move leftward to seek liberal votes.

Brewer's concern about this tactic is manifest. Implying that his soft-spoken approach is more effective nationally than Wallace's bravado, Brewer suggests to campaign rallies it was his lobbying on the Senate floor that passed the Stennis School Desegregation Amendment — a boast so out of character for Brewer that a worried supporter relayed warning that he was sounding like George.

But Brewer knows he cannot outdo Wallace as protector of the South in national politics. Instead, he must concentrate on bringing "a moral tone" to Montgomery — in implicit contrast to what prevailed under George and Lurleen Wallace.

Brewer is a prominent Baptist layman who brings an evangelistic style to the campaign stump and pulls it off nicely. "If you've been to your capital lately," he orates, "you don't have to see these agents of corruption" — presumably influence peddlers — "going up and down the halls." With his new state motor pool, says the young governor, "you don't see state cars at the football game or the beach like you used to."

Courthouse Square crowds in Greenville and Evergreen — supposedly Wallace country — liked Brewer's good government spiel. Although both Wallace and Brewer sound the same indictment of federal meddling in Alabama's schools, there is a difference. Wallace remains a true believer in segregated schools and talks that way privately. But Brewer feels segregation as such is dead, and Alabama should get on to other business. In this campaign, Brewer is betting that the people of Alabama agree.

Bell's Palsy

"Dear Dr. Thosteson: I never realized that Bell's palsy was so common until it hit someone in my family. We have been offered more 'home remedies' than I can count. The doctor says nothing can help it — P.L.D."

Bell's palsy — which is a temporary paralysis of muscles on one side of the face — can be alarming because it comes on so suddenly and the patient "doesn't know what hit him." The facial nerve, which controls those muscles, runs through the longest bony canal in the body, which may or may not have something to do with this affliction. There's a lot we don't know about it — but quite a lot that we do.

It may be that a sudden swelling of the nerve trunk occurs, and inside the rigid canal, this swelling interferes with the nerve impulses.

Various things can touch off an attack: infection, including colds; sometimes something such as exposure to a cold draft.

The affected side of the face sags and may be swollen, and is also drawn out of shape. With the muscles paralyzed, it is more difficult to talk or chew. Usually there is an aching pain at the angle of the jaw at first, and a disturbance of the sense of taste on half of the tongue on the affected side of the face, of course.

The painfulness and distorted taste usually subside in a week, but recovering use of the facial muscles takes longer.

About 80 per cent of patients recover full muscular function within a few weeks; the rest recover more slowly, in periods running up to six months. Usually recovery is complete. In a few, there may be a small residual weakness noted when attempting to smile or make other facial movements.

By and large, recovery comes in the times mentioned above, even without any treatment at all. There is no medication that will bring immediate recovery. So, as with all such diseases lacking any specific cure, Bell's palsy has acquired a wild and woolly assortment of "positive" home remedies that don't do any good. I suspect most of them don't do any harm, either, which is lucky.

Right at the outset, a few things can be done. Steroids (cortisone derivatives) if given very early appear to hasten recovery. Sometimes the B vitamins are given, and also nicotinic acid to improve circulation.

Since the patient cannot completely close one eye, artificial tears are used to keep the eyeball moist, and a patch is used at night or when going outdoors to protect against dust and cold. Heat (warm compresses) is usually recommended and is soothing. Also gentle massage of the facial muscles, with the patient encouraged to try to exercise his face muscles as soon as he can.

Eye protection is important; whether the other measures really speed recovery is open to argument among experts. Definitely, recovery takes time, no matter what you do.

The American Flag

WASHINGTON, D.C. — As a citizen who has been furtively hoping somebody would legitimize the American flag, I am warmed by an editorial in the excellent Gary, Ind., Post-Tribune. Without becoming maudlin, the Post-Tribune defends the practice in some communities of policemen affixing a patch of the flag to their uniform.

The subject came up because the city controller challenged the flag-patches as non-uniform, and was backed by the police chief, who ordered removal of the patches. Post-Tribune suggests that the best remedy is for the chief to prescribe the flag-patch and have the board of works approve the change.

"In the first place," says the Post-Tribune, "the flag controversy is not a purely Gary phenomenon," but part of an "angry reaction to a variety of desecrations of the flag by various segments of the New Left." It notes that some 1,000 of the nation's 18,300 police departments authorized the patches on police uniforms, and that the practice was publicly endorsed by President Nixon.

But the point of the newspaper's editorial that for me gets to the guts of the matter is that the American flag should be singled out as an issue in the matter of a policeman's uniform. It notes that no criticism was leveled against other unprescribed patches such as those worn by winners of chambers of commerce citations as cops-of-the-month.

Since the editorial writer didn't mention one recent development, I will. It is that in some communities certain politicians find it not only chic but expedient to pick on our poor flag. In New York City, for example, fun-loving Johnny Lindsay permitted a cop who had donned the flag to be reprimanded until Nixon came to the man's support.

The flag is not "in" anymore. It is regarded with derision, contempt and sometimes savagery not only by the New Left but by certain segments of the Beautiful People. Professional civil rights lawyers hurry to the defense of those who burn, rip and defecate on the flag, arguing that such citizens are merely exercising their right of dissent.

Indeed, it could be said with validity that everything goes now except patriotism, religion and good taste. Prayers are banned in the schools, but not readings from the obscene

Negro poet, Le Roi Jones. A pupil may refuse to salute the flag, but may not be excused without penalty from indoctrination courses dominated by the teachings of revolutionaries. Pot peddlers set up shop unmolested on school playgrounds and college campuses.

Heaven knows, I am nauseated by the professional flag waver who uses it for his own untidy means. I find the playing of the National Anthem at prize fights vulgar. Some of the more slack-jawed among our gendarmes have been known to wear the Stars and Stripes while beating up prisoners. And office seekers from time immemorial have befouled the flag with their indecent embraces.

Black Votes

WASHINGTON — The Republican National Committee has refused to sponsor an election-year brochure now being printed by the House Republican Campaign Committee to boost party chances with black voters in the 1970 election.

Carrying the names, pictures, and positions of some 150 Negro sub-officials now working in the Nixon administration, its purpose is to show that, despite President Nixon's low standing with black voters, he has placed more Negroes in more and better Federal jobs than either John Kennedy or Lyndon Johnson.

When Rep. Bob Wilson of California, Chairman of the House Republican Campaign Committee — with specific approval of the White House at a March 5 meeting — first proposed that the National Committee put its imprimatur on the brochure, Rep. Rogers Morton of Maryland, the party's National Chairman, saw some political merit in the idea.

But as they studied it, Morton and his top assistants were wary. The brochure, they decided, might have been good political public relations five or ten years ago but today it smacked of tokenism. "They had Nixon on the cover surrounded by black faces," one committee operative told us. "Middle-class blacks will laugh at it as transparent political gimmickry."

It would be far better, decided James Allison, Deputy National Chairman, to limit the brochure to the top 15 Negroes who now hold policy-making positions and depict them not in sterile front-face photographs alphabetically listed but actually carrying out important assignments. According to this theory, power and influence, not numbers, are the critical issues today with Negro voters.

Thus, Assistant Secretary of Labor Arthur Fletcher should be shown in conversation with labor leaders pushing the Philadelphia plan for the hiring of black construction workers.

The fact that the Nixon administration has indeed appointed nearly twice as many Negroes to jobs at the decision-making, assistant-secretary level as the Kennedy-Johnson administrations, making Allison's theory doubly attractive.

While the National Committee pushed this refinement, with neither the White House nor the House Committee showing any interest in changing the original idea, it was suddenly learned that the author of the brochure was a black Republican operative named Clay Claiborne.

Claiborne was indicted after the 1964 presidential election on a charge of illegally printing and distributing a leaflet call on Negro voters in big city Democratic precincts to write in the name of Martin Luther King for president. This bit of political chicanery was aimed at depriving the Johnson-Humphrey ticket of Negro votes.

Claiborne was acquitted in a jury trial on May 31, 1966. Despite the acquittal, blacks of all political persuasion were convinced that Sen. Barry Goldwater's high political command ordered and financed the leaflets. Everyone alleged to have had a hand in the operation, including the acquitted Claiborne, suffered.

Learning that Claiborne had been hired by the House Campaign Committee to produce the brochure was the last straw at the National Committee, when they notified the House Campaign Committee it would have nothing to do with the project.

Hanoi 'Hardliners' Gain New Prestige

By United Press International
London diplomats say the hardliners in Hanoi have moved to the forefront again as result of the overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk in Cambodia and the increased pace of fighting in Laos. Those who have been counseling compromise with the United States have been pushed into the background. The results are expected to show up in coming weeks at the Paris conference table.

Cambodian Doubts:
Indian diplomats stationed in the Far East doubt there will be a return of the International Peace Commission, of which India, Canada and Poland are the members, to Cambodia. This despite requests both from the ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk and the new anti-communist regime which replaced him. Sihanouk wanted the commission to oversee elections; the new regime to prove the presence of and to help oust Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops from their Cambodian sanctuary. Poland is the key and the Poles, under instructions from the Russians, are expected to turn down both requests.

THAT SMALL BRACELET on Mrs. Lucile Pimintel's arm may not be particularly attractive, but it could save her life. She is one of more than 200,000 Americans who wear Medic Alert bracelets to warn they either have hidden diseases or allergies. Mrs. Pimintel, who is highly allergic to penicillin, started wearing her bracelet about eight years ago and has had it off only once—when she underwent surgery. Through a public service project undertaken by the Idaho Association of Life Underwriters, many other Idahoans may begin taking advantage of the protective devices.

Medic-Alert Bracelet Can Save Life In Medical Crisis

What on earth could Mrs. Lucile Pimintel, director of nursing services at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, have in common with Dan Rowan of TV's Laugh-In and Gil Hodges of the New York Mets?

These three people in totally unrelated occupations all wear identical items on their wrists. They are small bracelets obtained through Medic Alert.

The bracelets, although identical from outside appearances, carry different messages inscribed on the back — words which could be lifesavers to these people and thousands of others who wear the warning emblems.

The bracelets tell that the television star is diabetic; that the baseball great has a heart condition, and that the local nurse is highly allergic to penicillin.

These are three of more than 200 known reasons for wearing the bracelets. They provide instant information that medication given people with hidden diseases should be closely watched or that the "drunk" slouched over a car steering wheel may actually be a person in the midst of an epileptic seizure or insulin reaction.

More than 200,000 Americans wear the protective Medic Alert medallion and the organization also has affiliates in 11 foreign countries.

Mrs. Pimintel acquired her Medic Alert bracelet eight years ago — after several years of procrastination and after being advised to do so by her physician. She first became aware she is one of thousands of Americans who are highly sensitive to penicillin more than 15 years ago. At first she developed unpleasant rashes and itching after taking shots or pills of penicillin. Finally her hyper-sensitivity increased to the point where her vision was affected and her breathing impaired. Her physician finally informed her another dosage would be fatal and advised her to get some type of warning device.

She put it off for several years and fortunately during those years and since then has never been involved in an accident which would have prevented her verbally warning of her condition.

As a nurse, however, Mrs. Pimintel has seen several people who have been injured and brought to hospitals who were wearing Medic Alert bracelets or necklaces.

These instances were in California and Nevada. She has not seen the bracelets in use since coming to work at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital several months ago.

The idea apparently is just catching on in Idaho, and as a statewide project by the Idaho

Association of Life Underwriters, many Idaho residents may join Mrs. Pimintel in wearing the emblems.

"I would highly recommend that people with a condition such as mine obtain one of the bracelets. It could save their lives," she said.

During Medic Alert week early next month canisters will be set up in banks, doctors' offices, dentists' offices, drugstores and other locations in Magic Valley by the Southern Idaho Life Underwriters Association. The canisters will contain application blanks which, along with cost of the bracelet, can be sent to Turlock, Calif., headquarters of Medic Alert. The bracelets will be sent back to the applicant and a file will be made on the applicant at Medic Alert's center.

Besides other information supplied on the back of the emblem, the telephone number of Medic Alert is printed there. Anyone finding a Medic Alert wearer who is ill or injured may call the center collect, 24 hours a day, and receive the wearer's medical history.

To support the public service project of the Life Underwriters, a speakers' bureau has been set up in Magic Valley.

Utah Man Is Fined In Accident

WENDELL—John Joseph Habon, Tooele, Utah, appeared before Justice of the Peace Adeline Hirrel and pleaded guilty to violation of the basic rule, failure to drive reasonably and prudently, and was fined $100 and costs.

Investigating officer Jim Burke said Habon attempted to pass a vehicle driven by Ray McCord on Highway 26 south of Wendell when he lost control of his car.

When attempting to pull back into the right lane of traffic, the car left the highway and traveled 465 feet through a fence and uprooted a tree.

Youth Fined

A 15-year-old boy was fined $30 Friday in Justice Court for passing a school bus while it was unloading children.

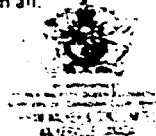

The boy was arrested by Twin Falls County Sheriff's officers. It was the second such arrest in a week.

Noted Editor Will Speak To Rotary

The editor of a weekly newspaper circulated in 41 states and read with interest by many and condemned by others will speak at the Twin Falls Rotary Club luncheon at the American Legion Hall Wednesday.

Sam H. Day Jr. has been editor of the Intermountain Observer since 1964 and has been a newspaperman since 1949 when he worked for the Washington Star in Washington, D. C. He graduated from Swarthmore College at Swarthmore, Pa., and is a Korean War veteran.

His newspaper experience has taken him through posts with the Associated Press in San Francisco and Boise and with newspapers, in addition to Washington, D. C., to Lewiston and Salmon.

Working with former gubernatorial candidate Perry Swisher, Mr. Day says the Observer is a paper that takes stands on issues and adds that as a journalist he does not have to be disinterested.

His paper has attacked such issues as capital punishment, the Idaho penal system and the closing of movies rated "X." The paper has also supported issues and individuals and in one case came to the aid of a Lutheran pastor in Boise who had been accused of having communist leanings. Through the Observer's investigations, the pastor was cleared.

The paper has a circulation of 3,500, but in a recent article in Time Magazine the paper was said to have a "surprisingly loud and sassy voice."

Trainer Tackles Fishy Job

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI)—Don Leon Smith is a professional animal trainer. When he ran out of animals that challenged his ability he took up training fish.

At his home laboratory Smith now has three Japanese carp that not only retrieve rubber balls, ring bells and play poker but even smoke cigarettes and blow the smoke bubbles to the surface.

Smith, 33, is employed as training director at the Japanese Deer Park in nearby Buena Park and also trains animals for motion pictures and television.

Multi-Species Trainer
At the park he recently perfected a dolphin act—considered relatively simple—and has started work on a Japanese bear act which he expects to have ready by midsummer.

Smith said he had conditioned 25 species of animals for oceanariums and parks as well as for the entertainment business.

Smith said he became interested in animal training while doing graduate work at the University of Texas. He officially classifies himself as an animal psychologist.

But Fish Need Help
Among the species of animals Smith has conditioned are wolves, house cats, chickens, macaws, black bears, grizzly bears, Kodiak bears, rabbits and mountain lions. Of training fish, Smith says, "It's just a hobby."

He also confesses that his fish do need a little help in smoking cigarettes.

Smith first lights the cigarette and inserts it into a long holder. He lowers the mouth end of the holder, leaving the lighted cigarette in the air. The fish then come up to the holder, suck in the smoke and let it bubble out.

EDUCATIONAL DEMAND

Dr. Seymour L. Wolfbein, dean of the School of Business Administration, said college graduates from every segment of commerce and industry are seeking graduate education in computer sciences because the use of computers in business has no limit.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Most people believe their problems are unique, and I am no exception. A little over a year ago, my wife of 20 years sued me for divorce. For some time prior to that, I had been suspicious of her extra-curricular activities and hired private detectives to report on her behavior outside the home. A clean slate was the result. I failed to realize that the search for the "other man" could have begun and ended in my own living room!

Before the divorce was final, she left this state. I didn't sign any final divorce papers and neither did she. Three months later she married her STEPBROTHER! [That is where my living room enters the picture.]

The question is, am I still married to this weirdo? And if so, is she a bigamist? The financial beating I took as a result of the divorce action makes it impossible for me to secure legal advice. In short, where do I stand in the event I decide to remarry in the future?

Signed: "IN LIMBO"

DEAR IN: Your local Legal Aid society provides legal advice for those who need it and can't afford to pay. If you are still married to the "weirdo" who married her stepbrother, she is indeed a bigamist which is HER problem, not yours. But don't YOU marry again until you are certain your present marriage is dissolved, or you will be a bigamist, too.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you saw a neighbor who lives in the same apartment building and uses the same laundry room wearing one of your new blouses? I must admit it looks much better on her than it looked on me, but I did like it a lot. If I see her wearing it again, would it be rude of me to say, "My, that looks just like a blouse I used to have about two weeks ago—until I hung it in the laundry room?"

J. W. IN PORTLAND

DEAR J. W.: You may not have to say anything after this hits print, but you are certainly within your rights to ask your neighbor to either produce proof that she purchased that blouse or to give it back—if you are absolutely sure it's yours, that is.

DEAR ABBY: The following letter appeared in your column recently:

"Dear Abby, Is it possible for a man to be in love with two women at the same time? [signed] JAKE"

You replied: "Dear Jake, Yes, and it's also hazardous." Well, tell Jake that it's possible for one of the women to love him enough to remove the hazard by walking out of his life. I did

Easter Weekend Rock Festival In Florida Drags Toward Painful End

A LONE ATTENDANT lies lazily in the sun on the beach at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., on Easter Sunday where generally thousands of college students gather. Only a sprinkling of kids were present for live band music provided by the city fathers. (UPI telephoto)

BITHLO, Fla. (UPI)—The Easter weekend rock festival dragged toward a painful end today with most of its 40,000 forlorn listeners headed North. But the legal hassles Orange County officials boasted they dreamed up to "keep it so confused it would simply die on the vine" had just begun for five promoters and the owner of the dude ranch site.

The parties also were over for thousands of other college students who spent their Eastern vacations at Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale. Most of them left Sunday to report for classes this morning. "Rain plagued the collegians most of their stay."

"This vacation was a total bust, a washout, literally," said James Jackson, 20, of Syracuse University.

Clouds of another sort hung over the festival.

Sheriff's deputies charged into the festival headquarters in a downtown Orlando motel and arrested Enosh Shachar, Michael Foreman, Bert Cohen, Stephen S. Mishory, Fred L. Wasserman and ranch owner James E. Brown. Bond for each was $725.

All were charged with conspiracy to violate a county injunction against Easter rock festivals.

A dozen festival-goers were arrested Sunday under the direction of Gov. Claude Kirk, who emphasized, "We're really after the pushers, not the users."

"That these dirty little dope pushers would choose Easter Sunday—a traditional day of love and peace—to peddle their junk is revolting," Kirk said.

Nudity and sex were commonplace during the festival. Couples snuggled on blankets throughout the pasture, and girls wandered bare-breasted through the crowd. One naked girl rode a horse in a flashback to Lady Godiva.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IV, Democratic secretary of state of West Virginia and a member of an old Republican family, said Sunday he plans to campaign for Democrats in other states, but will stay out of New York because his uncle, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, is seeking re-election on the Republican ticket. (UPI telephoto)

Idaho Woman Dies In Crash

KAMIAH (UPI)—Idaho's highway death toll stood at 55 today with the death early Sunday of a 38-year-old Kamiah woman. Maxine C. Seaward was killed when the car she was driving apparently went out of control and rolled over on U.S. Highway 12, about three miles east of Lowell.

Congressmen Dawdle, Enjoy 'Rites Of Spring'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress pushes postal pay legislation and the Carswell Supreme Court nomination aside this week to observe the rites of spring. Thirteen members were already in Monte Carlo at taxpayers' expense.

The Senate does return for a mid-week repeat of last month's battle over a controversial school desegregation amendment sponsored by Sens. John Stennis, D-Miss., and Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

The House will bide time with proforma sessions all week. Democratic leader Carl Albert assured members there would be no votes unless government and postal union negotiators agree on a pay increase plan for a House-Senate Conference Committee to consider. The conferees recessed last week pending developments in the talks, which resume Monday.

The Senate is to vote Wednesday on Stennis's challenge to changes in his desegregation amendment to a three-year, $24.6 billion school aid bill.

Eight senators and five House members flew to Monte Carlo Thursday night to represent the United States at the spring conference of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, which attracts legislators from 67 nations.

The legislators were transported on Air Force jet, and get $50 a day in expense money. Princess Grace and Prince Rainier are the hosts. The conference ends Saturday, but the Air Force is prepared to fly the lawmakers back sooner for a vote if necessary.

Senators attending are John J. Sparkman, D-Ala.; B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C.; Hugh Scott, R-Pa.; Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.; Birch Bayh, D-Ind.; Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho; Strom

Tricia Nixon Revives Talk Of Romance

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI)—Tricia Nixon revived romance rumors Sunday when she attended Easter church services with her favorite escort, Edward Finch Cox, a New York socialite and one of Ralph Nader's "raiders."

The President's 24-year-old daughter stood with Cox, 23, behind President and Mrs. Nixon while they posed for pictures on the steps of the key Biscayne Presbyterian Church.

Tricia arrived at the family's bayside villa Friday night with Cox, who is a law student.

Both Tricia and "Eddie" make it clear they date others but they have a special friendship that has remained constant over several years.

Dugway To Resume Testing Chemicals

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Sherman P. Lloyd, R-Utah, says he has learned the Army plans to resume testing of lethal chemical agents at Dugway Proving Ground early this summer.

The Utah Republican said the tests would be conducted in accordance with new chemical warfare regulations.

He said the Army has nearly completed its plans for implementing the new regulations and is coordinating them with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Murder Conviction Is Reconsidered

LONG BINH, Vietnam (UPI)—The military jury that decided to reconsider its conviction of an Army lieutenant for premeditated murder found him guilty instead today of involuntary manslaughter in the death of a Vietnamese prisoner.

Lt. James B. Duffy, 22, of Claremont, Calif., admitted in testimony last week he gave his men permission last Sept. 5 to shoot the prisoner. His defense was based on alleged pressure put on him for higher "body counts."

U.S. Author Anna Louise Strong Dies

HONG KONG (UPI)—Anna Louise Strong, probably more influential with leaders of Communist China than any other American, died in Peking Sunday at 84.

She was a victim of old age and a lingering illness caused by arteriosclerotic heart disease.

An author, she spent much of her life in the Soviet Union and China. But she was arrested by the Soviets in the late 1940s and expelled as an alleged American spy.

The daughter of a minister, Miss Strong once edited the "Moscow News" with Michael Borodin, who served in the mid-1920s as principal Soviet adviser to the Chinese Kuomintang (Nationalist) party.

Easter Message

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI in his traditional Easter message warned destruction threatens the world unless man puts spiritual values first.

"A happy, blessed and peaceful Easter to you all," the pontiff told 100,000 persons who jammed the square of St. Peter's Basilica at noon Sunday. "Peace, peace be with you."

Slick Blown Away

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Cooperative winds blew a four mile long oil slick away from the Louisiana coast Sunday, but a Chevron Oil Co. well contributing to the pollution, still has not been plugged.

A company spokesman said he was hopeful the oil flow could be stopped soon.

Chevron operates a platform 10 miles off the Louisiana coast that has created the nation's largest oil slick since it started gushing oil March 10, one month after a huge fire was put out.

French Indignant As Beaches Attack

PARIS (UPI)—Officials in French resort cities reacted indignantly Sunday to a magazine's claim that many of the nation's most famous beaches are so polluted that "one risks life" to swim there.

The magazine "What to Choose" published a list of beaches, with classifications ranging from "healthy" to "very bad, where one risks life."

Among those called dangerous were such names as Monaco, Calais, Monte Carlo, Deauville, Cherbourg, Le Havre, Mont Saint Michel and certain areas of Cannes and Nice.

Nation's Executives See Bigger Profits

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Many of the nation's top corporate executives expect bigger profits, higher prices and increasing general business activity this year despite government forecasts of a cooling economy, a U.S. Chamber of Commerce survey showed Sunday.

Its poll of 855 board chairmen, presidents, executive vice presidents and company economists indicated that Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy may have been overly optimistic when he said "inflationary psychology" has been cured.

Contributions Law Is Being Enforced

WASHINGTON (UPI)—For the first time in nearly 15 years, the law prohibiting corporations and unions from making political contributions to candidates for federal office is being vigorously enforced by the Justice Department.

It may come as no surprise to Democrats who appear to be on the receiving end of many of the complaints—but the last period of activity under the law also stemmed from a Republican administration.

Although the Nixon administration can take credit for the current enforcement, it is largely the work of Internal Revenue Service agents and Democratic U.S. attorneys who began the investigations during the Johnson administration.

Carswell Backed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Richard Kleindienst, assistant attorney general, said Sunday that despite "political" and "misleading" opposition to Judge G. Harrold Carswell, his nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court will be confirmed by the Senate.

Drug Problems On U Of I Campus Slated For Study

MOSCOW — A comprehensive survey on the nature and extent of the drug problem on the campus will be undertaken by the student government at the University of Idaho, according to Jim Wilms, Gooding, student body president.

The survey, which will be underwritten by student funds, will be carried out by a dandom, confidential method in mid-April. Results will not be released as public information, Mr. Wilms said.

"We are developing a much more aggressive program to combat drug abuse," the student leader said, "and we feel that results of the survey will be essential in designing the most effective approach. We see no value in playing a statewide game of statistics with a problem like drugs."

The educational program already under development by the university students will include distribution of a broad range of information on drugs and their effects, development of a "drug library" for each campus living group, forums and speakers and the development of a center where persons with drug problems can go for help.

"Students at the university of Idaho," Mr. Wilms said, "believe that the university would do what it does best—educate. That is precisely what we are attempting to do."

JIM: How about a few articles on the use of the word ARCH? Analyze the lead. Review the bidding. Count your winners and losers. How can I make or defeat the contract?

OSWALD: "Here's a hand played in San Angelo, Tex., by Helen Willcockson. The game was duplicate and she was in the top contract of six no-trump, but so was everyone else. Helen saw no need to bother with A or R and, when she counted her winners, she saw that she had an easy 12 and might make 13 if she could get a way with one club trick early in the play."

JIM: "In rubber bridge, those extra tricks don't mean anything at slam contracts. In duplicate, they win tournaments for you. I imagine that Helen went after that club trick as soon as possible."

JIM: "East might well have hopped up with that ace of clubs. He really should have been worried about the possibility that the boat might sail away without him. Probably he felt that his sure diamond stopper was going to protect him from any real trouble later on."

OSWALD: "That's what he must have thought, but Helen showed him the error of his ways in short order."

JIM: "Once East ducked that club, Helen was caught in a hopeless squeeze. Helen cashed the spades to discard her fourth diamond, cashed the hearts to discard dummy's last club and poor East had either to unguard his jack of diamonds or leave his ace of clubs out the window."

Negro Takes New Job

By STEPHEN MORROW
CLEVELAND (UPI) — Air Force Lt. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis Jr., the highest ranking Negro in the American armed services retired from the military two months ago and stepped into what may well be the toughest command in his career.

Turning down lucrative offers from industry, Davis accepted an invitation by Mayor Carl B. Stokes to come to Cleveland as safety director and "do whatever is necessary to halt the appalling rise in crime."

The arrow straight, graying 57-year-old general once led 120,000 airmen and civilians as commander of the 13th Strike Force. Now he commands 2,200 policemen and 1,200 firemen.

Once he coordinated the activities of huge Air Force squadrons with chiefs of staff of nations such as Nationalist China, the Philippines and Korea. Now he is responsible for keeping the city's safety forces working smoothly with angry politicians, aroused community leaders, and the volatile citizenry of a single city of 800,000, where, as a sociologist put it "the urban crisis stands out in classic form."

Davis has moved surely onto his smaller and totally new stage. Now, after eight weeks, he feels he knows where the attack must be launched to fulfill the assignment of his new commanding officer, America's first elected major city Negro mayor, who was incidentally, a corporal in World War II.

"My highest priority is the relations of the citizens to the police and the police to the citizens," Davis said. "If we're ever able to break the barrier and develop any solidarity between our citizens and the police, so that the citizens feel they are part of the police effort and the police feel the citizens are helping them, then we will be able to make a dramatic improvement in a short period of time."

"The problem involves the image of the police, the attitude of the police, the attitude of the citizens toward the police and the image of the citizen in the minds of the police."

In his efforts to build the solidarity he's seeking, two or three times a week Davis goes out to community meetings, bringing with him police district commanders and officers of the community relations department.

Even more often, he visits firehouses and police stations. In a church in a middle class black neighborhood early this month, the general told a citizens group:

"If anybody improves the conditions in this city, it will be you, not the police, not the mayor, not me. If we're going to improve the situation, each citizen must contribute."

Davis said he finds his job "fascinating." "I go to work in the morning eagerly. I see more people on a day-to-day basis than I've ever seen before in my life. All these people are crying for a change in the safety situation. If I'm able to contribute to their need, the gratification would be very, very great, he said.

"But unless I produce an improvement, the respect I now have would be lost. I expect to produce it, but whether the magnitude of what I produce can meet the expectations is another question."

As the Society's key volunteer this year, Mr. Parker will visit a number of cities in behalf of the cancer cause. ## Gas Tests May Resume At Dugway

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Testing of chemical warfare weapons at the Dugway, Utah, Proving Grounds were nerve gas accidentally killed several sheep two years ago, may be resumed this summer, Rep. Sherman P. Lloyd, R-Utah said Saturday.

Lloyd said in a news release that the Army has drawn up a list of tests it considers necessary to national security and is processing plans according to new regulations ordered by Congress.

Lloyd did not identify the type of tests the Army seeks and merely described the weapons as "lethal chemical warfare agents."

Scores of sheep grazing near Dugway were killed by nerve gas that accidentally leaked from the area in March, 1968.

"A list of tests which the Army feels is necessary to the national security has been drawn up, but the plans must go through several steps of approval before the tests can be carried out," Lloyd said. He added, however, that testing "probably will resume early this summer at Dugway Proving Ground."

Lloyd noted that new regulations, written by Congress into the fiscal-1970 defense department appropriations bill, require that the secretary of defense first approve the tests.

Legislation Asked On Boating Items

NEW YORK (UPI)—New proposed federal boating legislation envisions repeal of present equipment requirements for pleasure boats and instead would give the Coast Guard authority to adopt equipment requirements by regulation.

The object would be to make it easier to alter equipment requirements according to current safety needs and advances in technology.

With this in mind, the Coast Guard in 1968 asked a representative boating panel to evaluate the adequacy of present federal equipment requirements and make recommendations as to which should be continued, which modified, or any other safety equipment which ought to be included.

The group—the Advisory Panel of State Officials to the Merchant Marine Council of the U.S. Coast Guard—appointed a study committee which during 1969 conducted a questionnaire survey of state boating law administrators to obtain a consensus on equipment regulations which the states felt to be necessary or desirable.

Based upon the information gathered, coupled with their own experience and knowledge in boating safety, the committee recently submitted a number of recommendations. Here are some of them:

Life-saving Devices: The Coast Guard, in cooperation with industry, would endeavor to approve life-saving equipment that will be more acceptable to the public from the standpoint of comfort and wearability. Require approved devices on all vessels. Consideration could be given to removing buoyant cushions from the list of Coast Guard approved equipment and to approving buoyant clothing. All life-saving equipment should be colored International Orange. Hardware appendages for fastening devices should be located so as to facilitate ease in attachment and release.

Fire Extinguishers: Require them on all motorboats. Sound Signals: Eliminate the ship's bell requirements for Class II vessels, but keep it for Class III. Require sound-producing devices on all vessels. Prohibit the use of sirens on pleasure craft.

Lights: Consider adoption of a single standard system for pleasure craft, preferably international light rules. Delete the light intensity requirement. Require all nonmechanically propelled boats under way between sunset and sunrise to display a 360 degree light. Ventilation: Publish specific minimum standards therefore, and spell out acceptable formula for determining required open-space for natural ventilation.

—Anchors and Line: Require on all vessels, suitable for water depth and size.

—Battery Cover: Require battery insulated cable, cover and tie down straps for all vessels having battery ignition or other battery operated apparatus.

—Additional Requirements: Require distress flag, flashlight, flare, bilge pump, bailer and dye markers.

CASUALTY REPORT

BANGKOK (UPI)—Kachin rebels in North Burma killed more than 200 Burmese government soldiers in clashes last week, the Thai ambassador to Burma said Saturday. Ambassador Wongsie Ponnikorn, who arrived here Friday said the major fighting took place in northern Burma, stronghold of the Kachin hill tribesmen.

Molly Molitor, Boise; Nancy Kent, Mountain Home, and Becky Fredrickson, Pocatello. The candidates were chosen from members of the Scotch Guard auxiliary of the ISU Reserve Officers Training Corps unit.

Computers Join 'Faculty'

WEST POINT (UPI)—Since 1963 the United States Military Academy has required all cadets to undergo "hands on" training at the school's computer.

This means each student must learn to program and operate the computers. The academy is believed unique among colleges and universities in that it requires 100 per cent participation by students in the four-year, inter-departmental, academic computer program.

The computer system, a GE-635 three-dimensional one, has time-sharing capabilities permitting simultaneous use of the facility by more than 100 cadets.

The system this year is being used by faculty members, as well as the 4,000 cadets, in both physical sciences and humanities. Typically, cadets use the computer system to solve such problems as rotary inertia and nuclear masses in physics, frequency response of a band pass filter in electrical engineering, along with differential equations, probability theory and numerical analysis in mathematics.

They also go to the computers to solve problems in weapons design, slope deflection analysis and linear programming.

In addition to learning to work with electronic data processing equipment, cadets are able to acquire good judgment in deciding what problems can and cannot be assigned to electronic machines for processing.

Mapping Of Road Slated

It may look like any other Idaho State Highway Department truck, but the slow-moving vehicle Twin Falls County residents will be seeing on various roads in the area is a mapping and highway inventory truck, covering every inch of roadway in the county.

State Highway officials say the mapping and inventory of all roads and roadside structures in the state will be completed in the next eight years and during that time it will cover 53,334.9 miles of public highways, streets and roads in Idaho.

John Martin and Roy Robinson are trained specialists for the Idaho Department of Highways who are conducting the inventory. Each morning as the truck starts out Mr. Martin consults a large county road map, marking it with codes to denote the various types of streets they will cover. The map, when complete will also show the kinds of houses, farms, commercial or other buildings, overhead power lines, culverts, bridges and other landmarks.

The map used as a guide in the present inventory was made in an inventory 10 years ago. Changes over the 10 years will be noted on the new map. Mr. Robinson will be keeping note of odometer mileage and a running log showing which road is Forest Service, county, Bureau of Land Management, state or other type. Accurate measurements of culverts and similar structures will also be given.

Information shown on the new map will go to hundreds of individuals, businesses, government agencies and others needing to know location of various structures and designation of roads in the area.
